SCARRED LANDSCAPE

THE ADIRONDACK PHOTOGRAPHS
OF J. HENRY FAIR (in Woods & Waters)

The 6-million-acre Adirondack Park is the largest publicly protected area in the United States mainland. Thousands of people come each year to rest, relax, and rejuvenate surrounded by the natural beauty of mountains, forests, lakes, and streams. Yet this “wilderness,” this protected place loved by so many, bares the marks of nearly 200 years of use and abuse.

The impact of human activity in the Adirondack Park is often easiest to grasp when seen from above. Scarring of the landscape from mining, paper mills, agriculture, recreation, and climate change are not always apparent from the ground, often hidden from road view and scenic trails. Photographer J. Henry Fair’s monumental aerial photographic prints document changes in the landscape, from the towering piles of tailings (a by-product of iron mining) on Lyon Mountain to the acreage of trees cut to allow the creation of an Olympic bobsled run. Resembling colorful abstract paintings, these images sometimes require a closer look to fully realize that beauty hides a less attractive story.

ADIRONDACKS FOR ALL

IDENTITY & ENVIRONMENTAL JUSTICE IN THE ADIRONDACK PARK

Join us for our new virtual program series, “Adirondacks for All: Identity & Environmental Justice in the Adirondack Park.” This summer series will examine the intersections between racial and environmental justice. Through engaging discussions with a diverse group of local activists, archaeologists, teachers, land stewards, and more, this series will explore experiences of inequity and oppression in the Adirondacks and the ways in which those realities connect with issues of preservation, pollution, and access to land, water, and nature. The “Adirondacks for All” program series was developed by the Adirondack Experience in partnership with the Adirondack Diversity Initiative, The Wild Center, and The Nature Conservancy. This series was funded by the Institute of Museum and Library Services.

SAVE THE DATES

Visit the events page at www.theadkx.org for additional information and updates about these upcoming programs. Events are free to the public, but require online pre-registration. Additional programs to come; please see the website for more details.

CALLING ALL ADKX MEMBERS

We have an exciting list of programs and events scheduled just for you this season.

Beyond the Buoys Hike to Minnow Pond

July 6 & September 7

Take a short (1 1/2-mile round trip) morning hike to the lake with Shane Holmes, licensed Adirondack guide, and Doreen Alessi-Holmes, ADKX Conservator. Learn about the history of the trail and the flora and fauna. Then, prepare for an extended outing on the water in our historic vessels. Paddle and row across the pond with Shane and Doreen. After you return to the ADKX campus, enjoy a special lunch under the shade of the Marion River Carry Pavilion.

AARCH and ADKX Member Outing to Wells

July 9 | $30 per person

Open studio & historic mill tour with sculptors John Van Alstine & Caroline Ramersdorfer. Bring your own lunch. Register through AARCH at 518-834-9328 or info@aarch.org.

Member Appreciation Day

July 13 & August 17

Enjoy special offers at the ADKX store all day long, just for being a member! (Offer excludes books, consignment, and already discounted items)

Plein Air “After” Party

July 16

Members are invited to join the Plein Air artists in the afternoon to see their art pieces up close, and hear from Chief Curator Laura Rice as she shows work by 1920s plein air artist Herbert Kates. Refreshments and appetizers available.

Members, Moths & Merlot

August 6 | $7 per person

With a glass in hand, get a close-up look at what flits around the museum at night with retired Smithsonian entomologist David Pollock.

Member’s Open Mic Night

August 10

Share your talents at the ADKX with our family-friendly open mic. Limited space for performers.

Eagle Lake Lookout Private Excursion & Post-Hike Reception

August 19 | $15 per person

Join fellow members for a moderate 2.5-mile round-trip hike up privately-owned Eagle Lake Lookout overlooking beautiful Blue Mountain Lake, Eagle Lake, and Utowana Lake. Eagle Lake is the site of Eagle Nest, the historic Adirondack great camp and Hochschild Family estate. Harold’s great-nephew and former ADKX Trustee, Nicolas Boillot, will join the outing as special guest and host. Post-hike refreshments will be available at Nicolas’ camp on the shores of Eagle Lake.

Raquette Lake Navigation Cruise, Lunch & Wine Pairing

August 24 | $75 per person

Chef Jim from RLN and Adirondack Winery join forces for a delectable lunch and sweet wine pairing while touring beautiful Raquette Lake.

Member exclusive events require registration. Visit our website, www.theadkx.org, for more information.

THE ANNUAL ADKX GALA

IS AROUND THE CORNER

Saturday, July 30 | 6pm–9pm

If you haven't been, this is the year. The annual benefit Gala promises fun people to get to know, great food, a short and lively auction, a beautiful setting, and all for a great cause.

At this year's Gala, we will be awarding Ross S. Whaley, PhD with the prestigious Harold K. Hochschild Award. Ross has helped guide many major organizations in the Adirondacks over the years from the Common Ground Alliance to the Adirondack Landowners Association to Shingle Shanty Preserve and Research Station, to name just a few. His keen sense of humor coupled with his impressive ability to bring people from all corners of the Park together has made lasting positive impacts on people and places throughout the Adirondacks.

To purchase tickets visit the ADKX website or contact Sarah Lewin at sl Lewin@theadkx.org or (518) 352-7311 x 125.
