

Is a picture worth a thousand words?

We think Noah would say yes! Noah often included little drawings in his letters and diaries. He used the drawings to replace some words.

A pictograph is the use of a symbol in place of a word.

Look at the ADKX pictograph. Can you read our story below?

Write a story of your own using our symbols — or some of your own.

Share your story with us at ADKXatHome@theadkx.org

ADKX pictographs

bear

campfire

fish

lake

moon

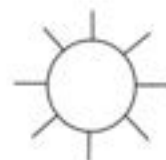

mountain

rain

river

sun

tree

One day, I took a walk to the . I sat by a  and watched the water. The  was shining and the day was warm. I built a  and watched the  rise over the . I walked home in the  light.